Season's greetings from a line-up of

TV TRIVIA fans will know that Sharon Gless was not the first actress, or even the second, to play New York cop Chris Cagney, partner to Tyne Daly's Mary Beth Lacey. The original Cagney was Loretta Swit, but she was unable to continue because of her commitments as the divine 'Hot Lips' Houlihan in *M*A*S*H*.

Meg Foster took over, but in due course was replaced by Gless, who liked Cagney & Lacey so much she later married the man who produced it, Barney Rosenzweig. Gless, in London to promote the Granada Plus re-runs of the show, believes that the show changed the course of television.

'At the time, a show about two partners and their feelings was totally new,' she says. 'Without Cagney & Lacey, there would have been no NYPD Blue. In fact, Barney calls it Cagney & Lacey in drag.'

retired from television and told Gless that he wanted to move as far away from Los Angeles as possible, without leaving the United States. So now they live in Miami, and last Christmas flew all their West Coast relatives over to them.

Gless comes from a branch of Hollywood aristocracy. Her grandfather, Neil S. McCarthy, was a celebrated Tinseltown lawyer, who is immortalised in the Polo Lounge at the Beverly Hills Hotel, which serves a McCarthy Chop Salad. He once declared that if his pudgy granddaughter lost 20lbs, he would take her to lunch with Cary Grant. Gless was a self-conscious teenager at the time. 'And his offer backfired because I decided I would be so embarrassed, knowing that Cary Grant knew I had lost weight to have lunch with him.'

Cagney & Lacey, Granada Plus, Weekdays 2.00pm, Sunday 12th 2.00pm, Boxing Day 8.00pm

EAST END greengrocer's son and former amateur boxer Ray Winstone is not used to finding himself lumped together with the hoity-toity likes of Rupert Everett and Ralph Fiennes, yet all three men are short-listed for Best Actor in this month's European Film Awards. Winstone is especially pleased to be nominated for his role in Tim Roth's powerful directorial debut, The War Zone, because the film, about incest, was panned by British critics and shunned by audiences. 'People were frightened by the subject,' says Winstone, who didn't exactly embrace the subject with open arms himself. Shooting the scene in which he, as an outwardly respectable father, rapes his daughter, was deeply disturbing. 'There was a lot of soul-searching going on, and I nearly left the set,' he recalls. 'Tim is a fabulous director, and he's a great friend, but there were times I wanted to kill him. Fortunately, Lara, the young girl who played the daughter, looked after me.'

Winstone's latest feature is the romantic comedy Fanny and Elvis. It's a welcome departure from his usual hard man role – 'I get to kiss the girl, for a change, instead of thumping her' – but it will be a long time before he is perceived as more Cary Grant than Grant Mitchell. Has his screen image, honed in uncompromising films such as Scum and Nil by Mouth, ever led to awkward encounters with men wanting to out-tough the tough guy? 'There were a couple of moments when I was younger, which were perhaps down to me. But twice in 20 years isn't bad. Actually, I think we underestimate the public here. They don't take all that stuff to heart, partly because I don't hide myself away. I drink in local pubs. In America, actors stay away from the public, walking around like big shots, and that's where problems arise.'

As versatile as Winstone is (he plays a Dublin money-lender in Anjelica Huston's new film, Agnes Browne), he has no illusions about wanting to play Hamlet. The part he most covets is Bill Sikes, and he came close to taking the part in Alan Bleasdale's ITV adaptation of Oliver Twist. But he has no complaints. 'I've been very lucky, especially with my leading ladies,' he says. 'Women like Kathy Burke, Tilda Swinton, Pauline Quirke, Amanda Redman. You know – real women.'

DISNEY'S animated movie Beauty and the Beast: The Enchanted Christmas, premiered exclusively on video this year. Now there's a first television screening for the film featuring all the voices from the original, including the venerable Angela Lansbury as motherly teapot Mrs Potts, Tim Curry as the nasty organ, Forte, and David Ogden Stiers (who played pompous Major Charles Winchester in TV's *M*A*S*H*) as the head of the Beast's enchanted household, mantel clock Cogsworth. The original Beauty and the Beast, incidentally, remains the only animated film ever to be nominated for a Best Picture Academy Award. Released in 1991, it earned $350 million at the box office. The stage version is currently wowing audiences around the world.

REMEMBER Ryan Giggs' solo strike against Arsenal in the FA Cup? Or France's shock victory over New Zealand in the Rugby World Cup? 1999 has been one of the most eventful sporting years of an eventful sporting decade, and there's a chance to enjoy classic moments from both as Sky Sports and Eurosport recall famous fixtures from the Nineties and 1999. George Best presents extended highlights of 13 classic sporting encounters of the last 10 years on Sky Sports 1 – from the 1997 Ryder Cup at Valderrama to the 1994 scrap between Chris Eubank and Steve Collins for the WBO world super-middleweight crown. The series begins on Friday 17th (Sky Sports 1, 7.00pm – see listings for more details) with Brian Lara's epic double-century against Australia in March, which helped the West Indies to win the third Test by one wicket. On Eurosport, there's a chance to relive action from this year's Rugby World Cup, including that shock semi-final defeat for the All Blacks (Eurosport, Monday 20th, 11.30pm).

Reunited – and it feels so good

Ex-EastEnders Leslie Grantham and Anita Dobson team up for next year's Sky drama, The Stretch.

Words: Pauline McLeod

PHOTOS: BSKYB, UK GOLD

Cheers! Anita Dobson on the set of The Stretch (main picture) and as Queen Vic landlady Ange in EastEnders (below with Leslie Grantham)

DIRTY DEN and Ange. Spirited couple, weren't they? Their spiteful slanging matches achieved legendary status among EastEnders aficionados. It seems like only yesterday that more than some 22 million of us settled down to watch Den dish up the divorce papers to Ange on the classic 1986 Christmas Day edition of the BBC soap opera.

Two years later and she'd 'ad enough, clattering out of Albert Square's Queen Vic on her stilettos, with her big hair, big mouth and big attitude still intact. At least Mrs Watts fared somewhat better than her other half. She opened a bar in Spain, while dodgy Den ended up sleeping with the fishes.

Now they're back – alive and kicking, yelling at each other, and swanning around Marbella with other dodgy expats. Not as Den and Ange, though.

In a masterful casting coup on the part of producer Paul Knight, the electric acting partnership of Leslie Grantham and Anita Dobson has been reunited for the Sky Premier-commissioned, £2.5million, four-part drama series The Stretch, which will air next year.

'It's dream casting,' enthuses Knight. 'We felt the rapport between Anita and Leslie was just right.' And his stars agree.

'When I first read the script, I felt as though the lead roles had been written with me and Anita in mind,' explains Grantham who, like Dobson, has turned down all previous attempts to reunite the couple. 'The role of Terry is one I can get my teeth into, and I'm really looking forward to working with Anita again.'

Grantham plays Terry Greene, a career criminal who has been keeping the extent of his activities (big-time drug dealing) from his long-suffering wife, Sam (Dobson). When Terry is banged up for a murder he didn't commit, Sam must decide whether or not to take control of his underworld business in order to raise some much-needed cash.

But despite the obvious echoes of his stars' previous roles, Knight is keen to stress that this is not simply a case of Den and Ange revisited.

'In no sense of the word could this be seen as a soap,' he warns. 'It's very violent, action-packed ... a very adult piece.'

Despite the gritty content, however, Grantham fans will be pleased to know that villainous Terry does have one or two redeeming features. 'He's a good family man who loves his kids,' smiles Knight.

WATCH OUT!

● The truth is out there for fans of The X-Files – the cult show is due to return to Sky One with a new series next March.

● Costing £75million, covering 34 acres and set to house over 10,000 different plant species in two Biomes (giant greenhouses to us), The Eden Project aims to become the world's leading centre for biodiversity – and Britain's biggest millennium project to boot. Recreating Eden will follow the Project's construction in Cornwall with a 20-part series airing on UK Horizons early next year.

● George Best (right), the former Man United player renowned for his fantastic footie skills and dubious drinking habits, has had the honour of having a film made about his life. Featuring on Sky Premier early next year and titled – what else – Best, it stars a team of familiar faces posing as some of football's most colourful figures. Jerome Flynn plays Bobby Charlton, Roger Daltrey takes on the role of Rodney Marsh and Sliding Doors actor John Lynch stars as George himself. Also making an appearance is Patsy Kensit who will portray George's wife, Angie.

Sky Premier

FRIDAY 10TH
9.00PM

JAMES FLEET is finally fulfilling his destiny as an actor. After years of playing nice guys and wimps, the worm turns in spectacular fashion in the Sky movie premiere Milk. His dairy farmer character Adrian loses his temper, makes love to a beautiful French woman, fires a gun and kills ... a parrot.

A parrot? 'Yes, a parrot,' grins Fleet, speaking in subdued tones on the set of the star-studded film in deepest Wiltshire.

'Adrian executes his late mother's pet for reasons that become apparent when you see the rest of the film. We'll probably get angry letters from animal lovers, although I must point out, of course, that no animal was hurt in the scenes in which the parrot features.'

'But I can't say the same for the actors – especially me. At one point, I have to carry the parrot around sitting on my hand. It started pecking at the skin between my thumb and my index finger, which was extremely painful!'

But Fleet is more than prepared to put up with a little physical discomfort in order to play such a juicy role. And there's no doubt that Milk, which also stars Dawn French, Francesca Annis (as Adrian's sisters) and French actress Clotilde Courau, offers him an escape from his previous assortment of dithery characters.

Fleet achieved fame playing the rich, loveable but desperately unassertive Tom in the smash-hit movie Four Weddings and a Funeral. That part led directly to the hapless Hugo in The Vicar of Dibley, which in turn led to the romantically inept Ashley in another BBC sitcom, Spark.

'But there's only so many times you want to play the same kind of role, and I was getting a bit fed up being Mr Bland, Inspector Limp and Johnny Dull.'

'Sadly, a certain amount of pigeonholing does go on in the acting profession. Once you've shown you can play a particular type of role, you often get asked to play the same kind of part in something else.'

'I've gone public before about my frustrations – I told the press last year that my dream was to appear in a Quentin Tarantino movie as a man in a suit with a gun that he wasn't afraid to use. And here I am playing a man in a suit with a gun that he isn't afraid to use – on a parrot.'

Fleet, 47, hasn't quite escaped from the roles that made him famous. His Milk character is just as posh as those he played in Four Weddings and a Funeral and The Vicar of Dibley, which is a source of some amusement to the likeable actor.

For although he seems quite at home in his character's dark, sober suit and crumpled but expensive

The first showing of the dark comedy Milk on Sky Premier sees The Vicar of Dibley's James Fleet making a pointed departure from playing the fool. Tim Oglethorpe talks to him about parrots, Quentin Tarantino and baring it all ...

for Milk

jacket, and looks very much to the manner born amid the vast, rolling acres of the Rothschilds' estate (where Milk is being filmed), Fleet is anything but upper class.

Married to actress Jane Booker and father of six-year-old Hamish, Fleet is the son of a toolmaker and shop steward from the West Midlands, and once spoke with a broad Black Country accent.

'It was so broad that, when we moved to Scotland, the other children I was at school with couldn't understand a word I was saying,' he recalls.

Anyone doubting Fleet's working-class credentials should note that he worked as a bus conductor, fish-factory worker and dustman before breaking into acting. It wasn't until Four

I said, a certain amount of pigeonholing does go on in my business.'

Fleet's character, Adrian, is an assertive man, prone to the kind of mood swings that would alarm any of the other characters the star has played.

When his cosmopolitan mother dies, the unworldly Adrian grasps the opportunity to start a new life. And despite being 20 years her senior, he attracts the romantic attentions of beautiful hitcher Ilaria (Clotilde Courau).

Fleet insists he is more like Adrian than any of his other screen incarnations. But if you are looking for similarities between the actor and the trio of wimps – Tom, Hugo and Ashley – who made him famous, try self-deprecation.

For instance, Fleet says that his son Hamish 'gets all his positive attributes from his mother' and admits to finding one scene in Milk tricky to do because it involved so many A-list actors.

'Adrian was holding the floor, addressing characters being played by a range of wonderfully talented people such as Francesca Annis, and I suddenly realised that any one of them could deliver my speech better than I could,' he explains sheepishly.

Fleet is also self-critical about one other aspect of his on-screen appearance – his bottom. Shortly after our chat, he disappears onto a closed set to film a love scene with Clotilde Courau, where his posterior is going to be immortalised on celluloid.

'I'm lucky that Clotilde is such a nice person and fine actress to work with. That's bound to make the love scene easier to do,' he says. But Fleet can't help worrying if the world is ready for a shot of his bare behind.

'Mind you, they might have seen it already when I did Moll Flanders for the BBC. But the scene in question was cut – probably because it had my bottom in it!

'Love scenes are never easy,' he winces. 'I remember doing a movie with Frances Barber called Three Steps to Heaven which involved me sitting naked in a bath. The camera crew were moving around me all day and, by the end of it, I felt violated!'

Foreign exchange: French actress Clotilde Courau plays the exotic, hitchhiking artist who attracts the attentions of farmer Adrian (James Fleet, above with Courau)

'... THERE'S ONLY SO MANY TIMES YOU WANT TO PLAY THE SAME KIND OF ROLE, AND I WAS GETTING A BIT FED UP BEING MR BLAND, INSPECTOR LIMP AND JOHNNY DULL'

Weddings that he became typecast as being posh.

'And now, most people think I really am posh and that I was probably educated at Eton,' he laughs. 'Before Four Weddings, I played a far wider range of parts, but I suspect that any sign of versatility confuses people. As

Pedigree chums

The wonderful world of Disney has always been a place where dreams can come true. And for one young animator, the chance to work on the studio's classic Lady and the Tramp proved a fairy-tale start to a career in movies. Hilary Bonner reports from Los Angeles

WHEN it was released in 1955, Lady and the Tramp – the classic

Disney tale of two ill-matched mutts, which premieres on the Disney Channel this month – was one of the most ambitious animated pictures ever made.

This was because it was the first cartoon feature to use CinemaScope – a bold decision taken by Walt Disney halfway through production, which meant that almost all the completed artwork had to be redone to fit the new widescreen format.

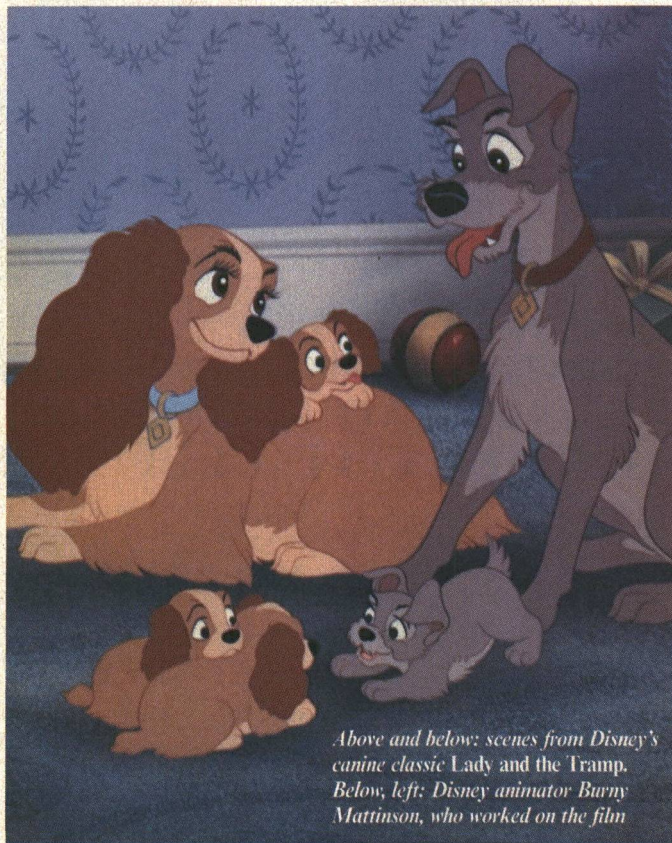

But despite the setbacks, the enduring memory for 64-year-old animator Burny Mattinson is the sheer excitement of working on the project as a young man in his first creative job for the studio.

'We didn't know we were working on a classic, but we knew it was going to be good,' he says. 'Walt was a genius. There were several directors on the film, but he cast them all and he was the overall director, as he always was. It was his vision, really.'

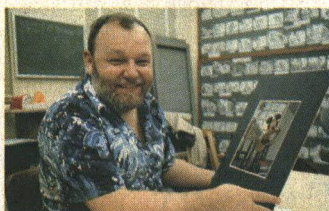

Mattinson had fallen in love with cartoons as a child, so working on a Disney project was a dream come true.

'I was six years old when I saw Pinocchio and I thought it was so sweet and such a wonderful way to tell a story,' he recalls. 'I knew from that moment on that I wanted to draw cartoons and work for Disney.'

'I used to spend all my time drawing. As soon as I finished high school I took myself off to the Disney studios with a folder full of drawings, but I was stopped at the gate and told I couldn't go in without an appointment. Then the security guard had a look at my drawings and remarked that he didn't think they were half bad. He rang somebody in personnel and I was taken on as a messenger delivering the mail. Six months later I was given my first chance as an animator on Lady and the Tramp. I couldn't believe my luck.'

After this humble beginning, Mattinson quickly became an indispensable part of many Disney productions, and his impressive CV now lists credits as producer-director on the festive favourite Mickey's Christmas Carol and as a writer on The Lion King.

LADY AND THE TRAMP
SUNDAY 12TH, 7.00PM

Doggone!

Bone up on your Lady and the Tramp trivia ...

The voice of pedigree spaniel Lady was provided by actress Barbara Luddy, who also featured in Disney favourites Sleeping Beauty, Winnie the Pooh and the Blustery Day and Robin Hood.

Legendary singer Peggy Lee co-wrote five songs for the movie (of which she sang three), and provided the voices for four characters: Peg, a faded Pekinese showdog; Darling, Lady's mistress; and Siamese cats Si and Am.

The film's canine stars were inspired by real-life pooches. Lady was based on a cocker spaniel owned by one of the directors, while mongrel Tramp was inspired by a stray mutt found by the associate producer.

Lady and the Tramp was released in 1955 after a gruelling four years in production, during which some two million drawings and 110,000 colour frames of finished film were produced.

Laid end to end, the sheets of paper used in the process – involving 150 animators, 700 gallons of paint and 100 different colour shades – would have stretched 825 miles.

GAVIN'S MOST MEMORABLE REPORT THE 1992 AMERICAN PRESIDENTIAL ELECTIONS

THERE was a real sense of excitement in America during that time, about new ideas, new beginnings and an end to the politics of the Cold War. People were desperate for change and for somebody that we now know is as flawed as Clinton (above). In the middle of it all, there were the Los Angeles riots. One guy we filmed stealing ice from a liquor store and I remember thinking, "Is that all you can get?" There was no one to call if you were in trouble because the police had disappeared. You realised what it would be like if anarchy existed. But the scene that really sticks in my mind came about a week before the elections. Clinton was campaigning in about 40 states over three days. I joined a crowd and threw him a really soft question. He didn't ignore it in the way that politicians do, he just had this fixed grin – the man was so dead on his feet, he could barely think. I hardly ever feel sorry for politicians, but I did then. And what stuck in my mind was: what a strange way to run a country, when you elect people on stamina.'

THE BRITISH SURRENDER IN THE AMERICAN WAR OF INDEPENDENCE

On 19 October 1781 the British army, surrounded by American and French troops, surrendered to General George Washington at Yorktown.

YOU had this utter rag-tag American army, led by George Washington, driving the army of the greatest empire ever known down to Yorktown in southern Virginia, to be cut off by the French fleet.

The British were forced to surrender and the American colonies became the United States. They could not believe they had lost to this 'rabble' and, on surrendering, the British played a song called World Turned Upside Down.

That must be the television moment of the past 1000 years – to see the moment when our great country realised that perhaps we didn't rule everything.'

THE CANARY WHARF BOMBING

I WAS in the CNN offices in London, having just finished my programme at 6.45pm [on 9 February 1996]. We were all putting our coats on when the call came in that the IRA had ended their ceasefire. Shortly afterwards there were reports of a large explosion in the Docklands area. Everyone exchanged glances – it wasn't hard to make the connection. I went straight back on set and didn't get home until about 2.00am. It was the first time I'd been tested like that professionally, dealing with breaking news. I remember at one point, having said everything that I knew at the time, passing to a commercial break and the director saying in my ear, "There is no commercial break – keep going." After that, the police, Downing Street and the other political parties become available for interviews, and you have more to go on. I lost my voice that night. Essentially, I was on autopilot for those six hours.'

THE DEATH OF DIANA, PRINCESS OF WALES

WHEN I heard the news [on Sunday 31 August 1997] I was in bed. The office phoned me up and I went in later that morning and we began uninterrupted coverage. It was all a bit of a blur. You just told it as it was – it was quite natural to be horrified and to reflect the outpouring of grief and concern. The most enduring images for me would be of her two children walking behind the funeral cortege. I spent four years in Northern Ireland, and some of the grief and tragedy there was, to me, infinitely more poignant than this. But it wasn't so much the dreadful event itself, but the extraordinary reaction to it – the whole nation was involved. With hindsight, some people change their minds and I have. In the end she was a woman who, like all of us, behaved badly at times, was indulgent, did some good and had some love. But I certainly didn't think that at the time – I was caught up with everyone else in the emotion.'

THE FALL OF THE BERLIN WALL

The Berlin Wall was erected in August 1961, to close the border between East and West Berlin. After Hungary allowed East Germans to pass through to the West it became irrelevant and was razed to the ground on 9 November 1989.

IREMEMBER [John F] Kennedy's speech from the Wall, saying it would come down. That's my era, the Cold War. I have all those images of people in my mind, crawling through the wire, trying to escape, being shot down. And the end happened so quickly, it was such a moment of dramatic symbolism. It was freedom with a capital 'F'. I'd have liked to have been there for the first thump of the bulldozer, but I was working in London at the time. I watched the scenes on television and I remember thinking, in one of those eccentric moments, "What on earth will all the spy writers write about now?"

THE FRENCH REVOLUTION

The forcible abolition of the old regime, which took place from 1789-93

THAT period appeals so much because it laid the foundations for other democracies and republics to follow suit, and it was a huge example of people power. I'd have liked to have gone into the crowds and found out exactly how they did feel.

I can also see parallels with events in modern society. I remember speaking to a policeman on the morning of Diana's funeral, who said that it wasn't terrorists they were worried about – it was when Charles appeared, for one person in the crowd to shout out, "You did this." The atmosphere was so emotionally charged – what struck me there again was the enormous sense of people power.'

BBC NEWS 24 From 10.00am on New Year's Eve to the early hours of New Year's Day, BBC News 24 promises a comprehensive news service as the new Millennium dawns. Brian Hanrahan will anchor the event, as correspondents file reports from various capitals around the world, and some of Britain's major cities.

CNN is screening 100 hours of programming to mark the Millennium. Coverage includes bulletins from correspondents around the globe – from New Zealand to Egypt, Venezuela to Israel. There will also be 50 special reports on major cultural issues of the last 1000 years, plus updates on any disruptions caused by the Millennium Bug or Y2K. Normal service will be resumed on 3 January with a special edition of Money Line for those who can't wait to get into those Millennium money markets.

SKY NEWS will be seeing in the New Year with a 42-hour live broadcast entitled Into 2000. Starting at 6.00am on Friday 31 December, Into 2000 will be following the arrival of the new Millennium across the globe, from the South Pacific to South London. From 8.00pm on New Year's Eve to 3.00am on New Year's Day, Countdown to 2000 will report live from the Millennium Dome in Greenwich, London.

A Spooky Spectacular

From 8 December 1999 one of your favourite Fox Kids characters will be taking up residence at the Shaftesbury Theatre London when Casper The Musical hits town. This is bound to be a "Spooktacular" show, and Fox Kids have got together with Cable and Wireless to offer one lucky reader a hauntingly good night out in a high-tech, mega-puppeted, all singing, all dancing musical.

We meet Casper living in a crumbling New York mansion with his uncles and a cellar full of his slightly unusual friends. Casper's life is rudely interrupted by the arrival of some property developers who have to solicit the aid of the ghostbusters to solve their spooky problem.

The battle for possession of the property between it's ghostly inhabitants and those intent on displacing them makes for a musical which can be enjoyed by children of all ages. It will certainly provide a boost to your spirits.

All you have to do to win this great prize, which includes tickets for a family of four (2 adults, 2 children), along with travel to London is answer this easy peasy question.

Who are Casper's three ghostly uncles?

- A. Stretch, Fatso and Stinkie
- B. Stratchy, Tubby and Whiffy
- C. Groucho, Chico and Harpo

We also have 10 runner up prizes of Fox Kids Spooky goody bags.

Send your answer, with your name, age and account number by 31 December 1999 to Fox Kids/Casper competition, PO Box 14460, London NW1 3WR.

All entries received by 31 December 1999 will be entered into a draw to be held on 4 January 2000. The winners will be contacted directly and informed of their prize. The competition is open to all existing residential customers of Cable & Wireless Communications only. Open to under 16's only. Normal Fox Kids rules apply. Full rules can be obtained from Fox Kids. Prize to be taken before 26 February 2000. Spending money and optional extras will NOT be included.

Thirty-eight years after it sank to the bottom of the Atlantic Ocean, an operation was launched, with the help of Discovery channel, to find the space capsule Liberty Bell-7.

DISCOVERY

BOXING DAY, 9.00PM

THE FATE OF Liberty Bell-7 is one of the great stories of the early days of space exploration.

America's second manned spaceship sank ten minutes after splashdown on 21 July 1961, and pioneer astronaut Virgil 'Gus' Grissom almost drowned when his spacesuit flooded.

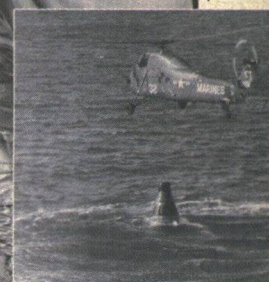

Grissom was rescued as he fought for his life in a turbulent sea, but his craft sank to the bottom of the Atlantic Ocean – more than three miles deep at point of impact. Until this year it remained the only manned NASA capsule never to have been recovered.

However, this summer, underwater search and recovery expert Curt Newport – a veteran of salvage operations, including those following the mid-air explosion of the Space Shuttle Challenger and the TWA

TIME CAPSULE

Making a splash: Gus Grissom (left) was rescued in the nick of time when Liberty Bell-7 sank in 1961 (below). Thirty-eight years later, Curt Newport (far left) salvaged the wreck Flight 800 crash – set off on a mission, funded by Discovery, to raise the wreck of the Liberty Bell-7 capsule.

On 21 July, 38 years to the day after its launch, the craft was finally lifted from its resting place on the ocean floor, 90 miles north east of the Bahamas. The Discovery documentary In Search of Liberty Bell-7 tells the story of this remarkable operation.

Grissom was one of seven elite airmen to be selected as America's first astronauts in 1959. The second American in space after Alan Shepard, he piloted Liberty Bell-7 on a sub-orbital flight, lasting just over 15 minutes, during which he reached an altitude of 118 miles and a top speed of 5310mph.

Grissom splashed down close to his designated entry point, but the hatch of his capsule unexpectedly blew off before the rescue helicopter could latch onto it. As water poured in, the astronaut tried to swim away, forgetting in his haste to close a valve in the belly of his spacesuit. He was snatched to safety by the helicopter in the nick of time. However the returning hero was later devastated by speculation that he had been responsible for manually exploding the escape hatch prematurely.

Grissom continued to be a key player in the fledgling American space programme, making a second trip into space in 1965. A leading astronaut in the Apollo project, he was expected to be the first man to land on the moon but, tragically, never got the chance. Because on 27 January 1967, 40-year-old Grissom died in a fire that broke out during a routine pre-flight test.

'We're in a risky business, and we hope that if anything happens to us it will not delay the programme,' he once said. 'The conquest of space is worth the risk of life.'

The salvage of Liberty Bell-7 looks unlikely to settle the argument over Grissom's alleged part in its loss. Problems with the rescue submarine meant there was no time for even a cursory look around for the blown hatch, which could have provided a clue to what happened 38 years ago.

Despite this disappointment, for Curt Newport the recovery was the realisation of a 15-year dream. 'I feel vindicated,' he says. 'A lot of people told me that it couldn't be done.' And when the capsule was successfully raised, all members of the expedition crew were overcome with emotion.

'It was incredible to watch it come out of the water,' recalls Max Ary, at whose Kansas Space Museum Liberty Bell-7 is currently being restored. 'Like a ghost rising out of the mist.'

SAVING PRIVATE RYAN
FROM WEDNESDAY 8TH

FOR Tom Hanks, it was a moment of truth. Wringing wet from the driving rain, having hardly slept for two nights, he was surrounded by six leading cast members of his latest movie project, Saving Private Ryan, who wanted to quit the production.

In an attempt to understand how hard life was for infantrymen during WWII, they were all undergoing a rigorous week-long exercise of sleeping rough, eating rations and filling their days with five-mile runs and weapon training before even a frame of film was shot.

But the stars, including Ed Burns and Tom Sizemore, decided they had suffered enough at the hands of their taskmaster Dale Dye, a Vietnam War veteran who had been drafted in to help add authenticity to the movie.

Hanks, 43, was out-voted six to one on the decision to walk out on training immediately, and the film itself, if that was what it would take for the actors to get back their trailers, warm food and comfortable hotel beds.

The star telephoned director Steven Spielberg, who was preparing to leave his LA office to start shooting Saving Private Ryan at a former British Aerospace facility in Hertfordshire. Hanks recalls: 'I told him: "If this goes on any longer, I don't think you will have a cast to work with." Steven replied: "Use all the experience you have to get them to change their minds."'

It was up to Hanks, winner of consecutive best actor Oscars for Philadelphia and Forrest Gump, to draw on the leadership skills of his Saving Private Ryan role as Captain John Miller and swing into action.

'I persuaded Dale Dye to give the men some more blankets and a day off the schedule,' he says. 'Then we took another vote after I had given my views on why we should continue. This time, good sense won the day.'

Hanks is convinced that this intense pre-production process, during which the cast were given such rough treatment, helped

Army drills, sleeping rough, rations – when the going got tough during the training endured by the stars of Saving Private Ryan, the actors were prepared to walk out on the movie. As Garth Pearce reveals, it fell to Tom Hanks to stop the mutiny shape one of the finest war stories ever committed to celluloid. 'If I had my way, we would have trained for a month,' he says. 'It gave us a great understanding of what these men went through, from living on foul food to not getting enough sleep – and we were not even being shot at.'

The film's unforgettable opening sequence, in which Hanks's men spearhead the 1944 D-Day landings on the beaches of Normandy, is certainly not for the faint-hearted. Soldiers are seen getting shot to pieces, losing legs and arms, in a harrowing re-enactment of one of the bloodiest battles of the war.

Advance military information that Allied bombers had shot away most of the German defences proved fatally flawed. When the fleet of landing crafts arrived, sent from warships moored in choppy waters on a grey dawn, they were blasted relentlessly by a line of German machine gunners, still safe in their concrete bunkers.

This shocking sequence shows men being maimed and killed in gory, unflinching detail as Hanks's team struggles to get a foothold on the beach and begin to fight back against the nests of gunners.

The images of the dead and wounded are incredibly disturbing and convincing, thanks largely to stunt expert Simon Crane, who had the idea of hiring young amputees to be trained as stunt men. A special-effects team built false limbs, which were then seen to be apparently blown off.

But behind the film's ambitiously mounted, adrenaline-pumping battle scenes lies a very simple story. American mother Mrs Ryan is about to receive the devastating news that three of her four sons have been killed in action. A pledge had already been made to every American parent that if two brothers died, then any remaining serving siblings would be brought back home immediately to sit out the rest of the war.

After the beach invasion, Hanks's character is handed an order to take his men and find the surviving son – Private James Ryan (Matt Damon) – and return him home safely.

What adds to the realism of this story, and makes it so compelling, is that the men involved do not act like heroes. They are furious at being asked to risk their lives to help try and save that of a stranger.

Spielberg's trademark suspense-building skills are in evidence here, too. When Hanks's men find themselves trapped in the ruins of a bombed-out village as German troops advance, the sequence is filmed in real time over about ten minutes as the soldiers prepare their defences while an ominous rumbling noise announces the approach of armoured vehicles.

Such supremely skilful film-making won Spielberg his second Oscar for best director (he notched up his first for the haunting Holocaust drama Schindler's List).

Saving Private Ryan has attracted criticism for the cloying, modern-day sequences that bookend the film. But Hanks remains bullish about the film's strengths: 'We have seen war films in the past where everyone wants to be a hero in a mission that might change the war,' he says. 'This isn't like that. Saving Private Ryan is not going to change anything and the men are far from gung-ho.'

'They have seen their friends and comrades die on the beach. They don't want to go in search of this guy. It is nice and ambiguous. This is not a war story wrapped up neatly in a bow and ribbons, with winners and losers.'

For Hanks the project was a risky proposition. He had been friends with Spielberg for years, and the two have always avoided working together in case on-set tensions ruined their relationship.

Also, this most affable of actors is seen killing for the first time in a 19-year film career in which his most successful roles have included an overgrown schoolboy (Big), an astronaut (Apollo 13), a lovelorn widower (Sleepless in Seattle) and the upbeat manager of a Sixties pop combo (in Hanks's feature-directing debut, That Thing You Do!).

'Steven and I just hoped that our friendship could survive and that no one was going to get too upset at seeing me kill Nazis,' he explains. 'I am not playing a two-fisted cop who is perched on the wing of an airplane trying to kill the baddie.'

For Hanks, however, the project did end in a degree of disappointment at this year's Academy Awards. He watched as the best actor Oscar was presented to the Italian Roberto Benigni for Life Is Beautiful, depriving Hanks of what would have been a Hollywood first – three best actor awards, surpassing the likes of Dustin Hoffman, Gary Cooper and Marlon Brando.

SKY BOX OFFICE SPECIAL EVENT

CLIFF RICHARD – LIVE IN YOUR LIVING ROOM

A unique opportunity to see Sir Cliff Richard live in concert on Sky Box Office. With hits from the past 40 years including Summer Holiday, Devil Woman, Wired for Sound and the unforgettable Living Doll, you won't be disappointed. To catch the magic of Cliff on stage, tune into Sky Box Office 3 on December 19th at 7.15pm.

The cost of this event is £9.95 per purchase. See TV Today on Channel 50 for booking details or call free on 0500 60 10 50.

Saving Private Ryan

Hailed as one of the finest war films ever made, director Steven Spielberg's Oscar-winning WWII epic Saving Private Ryan brilliantly captures the chaos and horror of war. Headlining a uniformly excellent cast (which also includes Matt Damon, Edward Burns, Tom Sizemore and, in a cameo role, Ted Danson), the never-better Tom Hanks plays a grizzled US officer in war-ravaged France who is given a mission to find the only surviving brother of four sibling soldiers.

Sky 15 (L,V), Text Premiere

The Parent Trap

A supremely entertaining remake of the Disney family favourite, The Parent Trap tells the story of identical twin girls who meet for the first time after being separated at birth and set about plotting to reunite their parents. Plenty of hilarious complications highlight this warm-hearted comedy, which boasts a delightful performance from young Lindsay Lohan in the dual role of Annie and Hallie. Also starring Dennis Quaid, Natasha Richardson.

Rush Hour

Martial arts superstar Jackie Chan showcases his flair for slapstick comedy in this funky action outing from director Brett Ratner. Chan and fast-talking comic Chris Tucker (from Ratner's Money Talks) are hilarious as odd-couple cops in this kidnapping tale.

Lethal Weapon 4

The smart-mouthed cop twosome are back in this fantastic sequel – this time Mel Gibson and Danny Glover are on the trail of Chinese triads. Thrilling action and witty dialogue abound, plus there's newcomer Jet Li's stunning martial arts skills.

Sky 15 (L,V), Text

There's Something About Mary

Smash-hit comedy starring Ben Stiller as a guy named Ted, who after 13 years still holds a candle for his high school prom date Mary (Cameron Diaz). Ted tries to track her down, but there are others who have their eye on her too. Unmissable, if only for the infamous hair gel scene. Sky 15 (L,S), Text Sky Box Office is not yet available in Millharbour.

A CHANCE TO WIN £200 WORTH OF VOUCHERS FOR THE DISNEY STORE

Cable & Wireless and Sky Box Office have teamed up to give away 10 prizes of £200 worth of vouchers. Every time you purchase Disney's The Parent Trap on Sky Box Office you'll be automatically entered into the prize draw. So not only can the whole family enjoy this classic comedy remake, but there's also a chance to win £200 worth of goodies.

No purchase necessary. For terms and conditions, see the leaflet enclosed in Cable Guide or teletext page 500 on Channel 50.

Dead Man on Campus

This darkly irreverent comedy yields plenty of outrageous laughs. It pairs Tom Everett Scott (of An American Werewolf in Paris and the Tom Hanks movie That Thing You Do!) and Mark-Paul Gosselaar (Zach from the TV school sitcom Saved by the Bell) as no-hoper students who decide to take advantage of a college rule that supposedly allows the roommates of campus suicide cases to be awarded A grades. As part of their hilariously macabre plan, they interview roommates who seem most likely to take their own lives. Sky 15 (L,S,M), Text Premiere

The Negotiator

This edgy, fact-based thriller is propelled along by the dramatic interplay of its two leads, Samuel L. Jackson and Kevin Spacey, who last clocked in together on A Time to Kill. Jackson plays Danny Roman, a leading hostage negotiator who is wrongly accused of murdering his partner. In a desperate bid to clear his name, Danny takes members of the Chicago Police Department hostage, and demands that negotiator Spacey be brought in to work things out. Sky 15 (L,V), Text Premiere

Blade

This brilliantly choreographed vampire-fu film preserves all the urgency of the comic book that inspired it. Wesley Snipes is the half-vampire of the title who is locked in battle with an evil bloodsucker, played with relish by Stephen Dorff. Sky 18 (L,V), Text

Antz

This exuberant animated hit will appeal to kids and adults alike, thanks to its brilliant visuals, wonderful sense of adventure and the talents of an all-star voice cast. Z (Woody Allen) is a neurotic ant struggling to be a somebody in his repressive colony. Sky PG, Text

Snake Eyes

This tautly crafted thriller from suspense specialist Brian De Palma benefits from a typically fine performance from Nicolas Cage. He plays a sleazy cop who becomes caught up in an assassination at a boxing match. Also starring Gary Sinise. Sky 15 (L,V), Text

Crazy war, crazy film

PHOTOS: MOVIESTORE COLLECTION

It may not have been the first film about the Vietnam War, but Apocalypse Now was certainly the strangest. Words: Kim Newman

🎬 AT A 1979 Cannes Film Festival press conference, seen in the documentary Hearts of Darkness: A Filmmaker's Apocalypse, Francis Ford Coppola said of the still-unfinished Apocalypse Now: 'My film is not about Vietnam. It is Vietnam. It's what it was really like. It was crazy ... and the way we made it was very much like the way the Americans were in Vietnam. We were in the jungle, we had access to too much money, too much equipment, and little by little we went insane.'

Twenty years ago, Apocalypse Now, which plays on FilmFour this month along with Hearts of Darkness, seemed to be an overwhelming movie. It took a long time to get it made. The idea of shooting a version of Joseph Conrad's slim 1902 novel Heart of Darkness set during the Vietnam War first came up in 1969, when writer John Milius penned the initial draft screenplay for then-underground filmmaker George Lucas to direct. Milius, in the documentary, enthuses that he would have liked to make the film in Vietnam and that the crew would have arrived just in time for Tet (the Vietnamese New Year and the date of a devastating Vietcong offensive that reversed the course of the war). Lucas, who later reused much of the plot of the film in the first three Star Wars films – the hero who has to face and kill his father figure to avoid becoming him – was less keen on exposing himself to real bullets than the gung-ho Milius, and retreated into a special effects fantasy world from which he has never emerged.

🎬 Milius was partially attracted to the project because Orson Welles hadn't been able to lick Heart of Darkness as a screenplay at the beginning of his career (Nicolas Roeg eventually made a drab adaptation of the book for American cable TV), and also because, at that point, the only Hollywood film that had tackled the Vietnam War was John Wayne's embarrassment The Green Berets. By the time Apocalypse Now finally made it to the screen, The Deer Hunter, The Boys in Company C and Coming Home, all high-profile films dealing with Vietnam, had already been released. Going by the Academy Awards, which went to The Deer Hunter and Coming Home (and later to Platoon), Apocalypse Now wasn't even one of the best 'Nam films. It says something about the redundancy of the Oscars, though, that at the 1979 ceremony, they handed out a clutch of statuettes to sentimental TV-style movie Kramer vs Kramer rather than give any real accolades to Coppola's epic vision (it received two – one for best sound and another for Vittorio Storaro's rich cinematography).

🎬 At a first viewing, the film is so amazing that it's hard to form an opinion. I still vividly remember the opening scenes of the 70mm version, when the quadrophonic helicopters seemed to be flying through the darkened cinema before the jungle erupted into surreal flames and the aural onslaught of The Doors song The End segued into Captain Willard (Martin Sheen) freaking out in a hotel room. The film is structured as a series of set-pieces along the river: an air attack on a village, complete with Wagner accompaniment, so Lieutenant Colonel Kilgore (Robert Duvall) can capture a great surfing breakwater; the trip into the bush that climaxes with the sudden appearance of a tiger; the inadvertent massacre of a boatful of peasants; and Brando's appearance as Colonel Kurtz, a tribal god in Cambodia reading TS Eliot and awaiting his murderer.

🎬 How many lines from Kramer vs Kramer can you remember? Apocalypse Now, on the other hand, has entered the language, and people continue to quote from it: 'Charlie don't surf', 'I love the smell of napalm in the morning', 'the horror, the horror'.

As Hearts of Darkness shows, the making of the movie – with Filipino president Ferdinand Marcos taking back his helicopters to fight rebels; real-life former marine Harvey Keitel fired from the lead to make way for Martin Sheen, who nearly died of a heart attack; and Brando and Dennis Hopper improvising hours of nonsense as Coppola tried to make up his mind about the ending – is part of film legend.

🎬 It's a movie that greatly rewards repeated viewings. It may well have been the last truly great film to have been made on a mammoth budget, and it's as much a part of our collective film history as The Wizard of Oz, Citizen Kane and 2001: A Space Odyssey.

From top: Dennis Hopper as 'The Photojournalist', Marlon Brando as Kurtz, and Martin Sheen as Willard

SIMON DAY

What is your favourite movie and why?

Raging Bull. They say boxing is a very brutal sport and I think that's what the film shows.

What is your first movie memory?

I remember going to see Those Magnificent Men in Their Flying Machines and The Italian Job as a double bill.

What is your favourite movie quote?

It's from Runaway Train. Rebecca De Mornay says to Jon Voight 'You're an animal!' and Jon Voight says, 'No, worse! Human! Human!'

What is the scariest moment you've seen on film?

Don't Look Now. It's all frightening but particularly that bit at the end with the dwarf. There's an atmosphere about it. You can turn it on at any point in the film and sense it.

● Simon Day can be seen in The Fast Show on UK Play Sundays from December 5th-19th

MY MOST MEMORABLE FIGHT

Sky Sports boxing commentator Glenn McCrory recalls the WBA Lightweight Championship between Oscar De La Hoya and Jesse James Leija at Madison Square Garden in 1995. By Ross Biddiscombe

THE MAIN reason I picked this fight is because it marked the reopening of Madison Square Garden as a boxing venue, and it was a chance to see De La Hoya live for the first time as well. I think he's the best fighter around at the moment pound-for-pound. [Since we conducted this interview De La Hoya has lost a title defence]. I really admire his level of skill, and that night he was up against someone who we all rated highly.

'I'd never been to the Garden and I don't usually get too excited before a fight, but this one gave me goosebumps because of the incredible atmosphere, especially because the audience was full of people who really know their boxing. 'As for the fight, De La Hoya ripped Leija to bits and showed what a great champion he is. It shocked me just how awesome he was at close quarters.

'That fight was a few years ago and I thought it would be replaced as my most memorable fight when I went back to the Garden for the Lennox Lewis-Evander Holyfield contest in March. The build-up to that one was fantastic and I had really high hopes for it. The result being given as a draw may have made it memorable (I thought Lewis won easily), but the fight was a real disappointment. So Oscar gets my vote instead.'

Nick Callow finds
 Leeds' young guns fired up for the Chelsea clash

THIS CRUNCH game could well be billed as 'England versus the rest of the world'. While Chelsea could field a team of 11 foreigners, with their assorted Italians, Frenchmen and the rest, the backbone of the Leeds team is made up of home-based talent. Leeds and England's young defender Jonathan Woodgate (pictured) appreciates the pros and cons of Chelsea's foreign policy. He said: 'People say the Premier League is the best league in the world because of the mix of English players and foreigners, so you need both. Perhaps some young English players can be held back, but we're proving you can bring through youngsters.' Woodgate is confident that high-flying Leeds can sustain a serious challenge for the title and added: 'I really believe there are great times ahead for Leeds fans.' But whereas David O'Leary's Leeds are on the verge of the big time, the stakes are higher at Chelsea. Manager Gianluca Vialli said: 'Because of the level we have achieved, everybody is expecting us to perform always at our best and get three points every time. I am not saying that is impossible, but it's very difficult.' Vialli added that the Premier League remains the London club's main target and concluded: 'I look around Chelsea and see 25 great players. We will need them all to succeed in our ambition to win the title and we realise that the Premier League is what people will judge us by. This will be an important game.' It should also be a fiercely competitive game. Two years ago Leeds had a couple of players sent off at Stamford Bridge, while 11 yellow cards and one red were dished out between the sides at Elland Road last season.

Edinburgh festival

The Scottish capital's derby match promises to be a Christmas cracker, reports Alan Tyres

THE EDINBURGH derby may be less famous than the one between Glasgow's Old Firm, but these are the biggest dates in the calendar for fans of Hearts and Hibs. In a league dominated by the Glasgow giants, the realistic goal for these two is third place in the table and – hopefully – victory over the lot from the other side of Edinburgh. The atmosphere at Edinburgh derbies – whether at Tynecastle or Easter Road – is no less fierce than in Glasgow, even though attendances are smaller, but there is less of the Old Firm game's sectarian bitterness. Both teams have made moderate starts to the season, struggling against Celtic and Rangers, but more worryingly, both have slipped up against smaller clubs. But for Hearts it is still a far cry from the relegation battle which faced manager Jim Jefferies last March. It was then he turned to Celtic's Darren Jackson (pictured). Jefferies said: 'When I spent £300,000 on Darren Jackson it was at a critical point of last season, and it was a big gamble to spend that on a 32-year-old who wasn't getting picked for Celtic. But we knew we needed someone of his experience and he's proved a terrific signing for us. It's no fluke that we turned things around after he joined.' And three points in this derby could give either team the impetus to turn around their fortunes for the season.

COMPETITION

CHARLIE BROOKS

Charlie Brooks is one of the most dashing and controversial characters on the British horse racing scene. With the likes of his stable's Suny Bay being twice runner-up in the Grand National, he is ideally placed to give an inside account of what really goes on in the stalls and on the racecourse. In Crossing the Line: The World of Racing Revealed (Headline, £18.99), he talks openly about the biggest issues in racing. We have three copies of this eye-opening book to give away. Just answer the following question. Suny Bay was twice runner-up in which famous race? Send a postcard to Charlie Brooks/Cable Guide Competition, PO Box 2176, London W1A 5TW. The closing date of the competition will be 31 December 1999. (See page 216 for full competition rules).

Week 1

Better the devil you know

One of the most harrowing tales ever committed to celluloid makes its long-awaited British TV premiere this week. A pungently atmospheric exercise in fear, 1973's The Exorcist details the demonic possession of sweet 12-year-old girl Regan MacNeil (played by the 14-year-old Linda Blair). Working from a literate, Oscar-winning screenplay by William Peter Blatty (who deftly adapted his own novel), director William Friedkin infects this controversy-courting shocker with a sense of dark, brooding malevolence. The film is enriched by the thoughtful acting of its brilliantly cast principals, with the revelatory Blair contributing an astonishingly uninhibited performance.

Ash you like it

Attention, Pokémon trainers! Sky One is showing all-new episodes of the adventures of Ash Ketchum, trainee Pokémon master, and his faithful pal, Pikachu. Having faced all shapes and sizes of Pokémon (captured wild animals that are trained in combat), Ash and Pikachu are almost ready to enter the Pokémon League competition ...

A hammering for Spurs?

Although it doesn't match the intensity of the north London derby between Tottenham and Arsenal, this week's clash between Spurs and West Ham at White Hart Lane is always a hard-fought contest. Both clubs pride themselves on playing attractive football, though Harry Redknapp's team currently have the edge over George Graham's Spurs in that department, with the skilful strike force of Paolo Di Canio (pictured) and Paulo Wanchope.

Albert Finney is excellent as a cop investigating a series of brutal murders in this fright flick from Woodstock director Michael Wadleigh. A suspenseful, surreal plot and inventive camera work elevate this modern werewolf movie way above the average horror howler.

Oliver Twist

ITV2 8.00pm

Alan Bleasdale's sympathetic adaptation of Oliver Twist begins tonight. Robert Lindsay stars as Fagin, Julie Walters as Mrs Mann and Lindsay Duncan as Elizabeth Leeford in Dickens's tale of an orphan boy lured into the grimy underworld of Victorian London.

|            | LIVE WORTHINGTON CUP: FULHAM V TOTTENHAM HOTSPURSKY SPORTS 2 7.30PMby Ross Biddiscombe   This is the kind of match that Fulham fans have in their sights as a regular fixture. A fourth-round home cup tie against mighty Spurs which pitches the journeymen like Barry Hayles (pictured, left) of the Craven Cottage outfit against the glamour of the likes of David Ginola (pictured, right). Worthington Cup holders Spurs won't want to give up their title to a Division One outfit, so expect a frantic affair. If all is square after 90 minutes, the tie goes into extra time and then if necessary a penalty shoot-out.   ### FILM

The Misfits

FilmFour 6.00pm

The last film for Monroe and Gable – she supposedly committed suicide, he had a heart attack – sees her drifting divorcee fall for his aging cowboy. John Huston's direction and Arthur Miller's script make this poignant, haunting drama a suitable swan song for both stars.

The Divine Comedy Uncut

VH1 9.30pm

Filmed at VH1's star-studded fifth birthday party at London's Atlantis Rooms, this features a semi-acoustic set from The Divine Comedy. Enjoy geeky frontman Neil Hannon's ironic pop sensibility with such hits as National Express.

CABLE CHOICE

FILM

Senseless
Sky MovieMax 10.00pm
A smart movie that showcases Marlon Wayans's sixth sense for comedy. He plays a college graduate who agrees to be a guinea pig for a sense-enhancing drug. In the short-term it helps his career, but the side-effects lead to numerous side-splitting, slapstick situations.

GENERAL

Buffy the Vampire Slayer
Sky One 8.00pm
The new principal of Sunnydale punishes Buffy, Xander and Willow by insisting they perform in the talent show. When one of the dancers is found dead, with her heart removed, suspicion falls on Morgan, a strange student who is a ventriloquist, and his dummy Max.

LIVE NATIONWIDE LEAGUE: WOLVES V MANCHESTER CITY SKY SPORTS 2 7.00PM

The so-called experts at the start of the season would probably have bet tonight's home team Wolves to be in the ascendancy and visitors Manchester City to be struggling. How wrong they would have been. Only the recent signing of striker Ade Akinbiyi (pictured, left) at Molineux and a few scrappy wins have revived thoughts of the Premier League. Manager Colin Lee is under pressure to succeed. Meanwhile experienced City players like Kevin Horlock (pictured, right) have topped the table and are loving it.

The singer chats about fame and fortune in 'Phil Collins in Geneva'. VH1 12noon

The Foxes will need midfielder Muzzy Izzet (pictured, left) to keep up his goal scoring exploits, but he has a long way to go to outscore Highbury favourite Dennis Bergkamp (pictured, right), although the Dutchman's form this year has been affected by injury.   |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | PLAYBOY TV/ ADULT CHANNELADD-ON CHANNEL 10.00pm Freeview 10.05Passion Cove 11.00 Girls of the Internet 12midnightFreeview 12.10am Premier Strip 12.20 Neil Down - Sex Therapist 12.50 Sunday Sport Stunners 1.05 FILM: Getting Personal 2.20 New Model File 2.45-4.00amFILM: Suburban Buttnicks Adult Nightview is now available as a TV on-demand service between 10.00pm and 4.00am at £3.95. # LOVE STARS BY MARGIE THILLART

Aries

21 March-20 April ★★
 LIFE will be full of surprises in this anything-can-happen month. Just when you think your career or love life is running smoothly, events are likely to unfold that eventually work in your favour. Try to roll with the punches.

Libra

24 September-23 October ★
 A SLIP of the tongue could have far-reaching consequences, so think carefully before you make any outlandish comments. Normally, yours is not an outspoken sign, but the planetary energy makes you forget your manners during December.

Taurus

21 April-21 May ★
 SATURN static in your sign is teaching you some tough lessons, but you'll be a much wiser person in the long run. Meanwhile, count your blessings and live in the moment rather than yearning for something you just can't have.

Scorpio

24 October-22 November ★★
 THE message this month is to allow others to be themselves. While Mars is at odds with your sign, any attempts to control other people or manipulate situations to suit yourself are likely to backfire before too long.

Gemini

22 May-21 June ★★
 YOUR heart may be in two places, but you'll be content to handle the double life for the next few weeks. Different people will meet your assorted needs and you may have to spread yourself thinly in order to be truly happy.

Sagittarius

23 November-22 December ★★
 SUN in your sign heralds change and suggests you'll be in a much happier cycle of life by the turn of the year. There may be an unexpected trip away from home base, or you'll welcome attention from an attractive newcomer.

Cancer

22 June-23 July ★★
 WITH little preamble or forethought, you'll be inclined to launch into attack when provoked by other people. And while you may consider your reactions and responses honest, loved ones are likely to deem you tactless this month.

Capricorn

23 December-20 January ★★
 YOUR head and heart may be in conflict, but it appears the latter will win out in the end. Despite your strong code of personal conduct, you should not be afraid to let your basic instincts guide you in the coming weeks.

Leo

24 July-23 August ★★
 THE grass may look greener on the other side, but the planets urge you not to make any impulsive moves between now and year end. You're heading into a more exciting phase of life, but there are loose ends to tie up first.

Aquarius

21 January-19 February ★★
 MAGNETIC Mars draws the right people into your circle this month and helps you attract new opportunities. Some of you may embark on a journey of self-discovery soon, while others forge a friendship that is destined to last forever.

Virgo

24 August-23 September ★★
 THE standards you set may be impossible for others to meet, but perfection is all-important to your sign this month. You can expect opposition from friends and loved ones, especially to one of your more outrageous suggestions.

Pisces

20 February-20 March ★★
 YOUR tendency to keep a part of yourself hidden may be preventing true personal happiness. Let your defences down this month and show your softer side to those who already love you or those who wish to get to know you better.

FILM

US Marshals
Sky Premier 9.00pm
Tommy Lee Jones reprises his oscar-winning role of the gruff Marshal
Gerard in this entertaining action-thriller sequel to 1993's The Fugitive. He's on the trail of a missing criminal, Wesley Snipes, whose guilt is portrayed with gratifying
ambiguity for much of the movie.

GENERAL

The Simpsons
Sky One 6.30pm
In this new episode, Homer and family flee Springfield after he is challenged to a duel. Hiding out at the farm where he grew up, Homer hits on a way of growing addictive giant tomatoes (boosted by plutonium from the plant) Will the loveable dork be tempted to cash in?

|                            |  This midpoint of the season will be a defining moment for many teams in the Premier League, including Liverpool - (whose Michael Owen is pictured, left) - who entertain Sheffield Wednesday this afternoon. Gerard Houllier's revamped team suffer in-and-out form that is so unlike the Reds of the Seventies and Eighties whose consistent Anfield results seemed a foregone conclusion. Wednesday (whose Wim Jonk is pictured, right) are still fighting for their lives but have shown signs of revival. |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | 10.00pm Freeview10.05 FILM: Lover's Leap11.40 Adult Stars Close-Up12midnight Freeview12.10am P's Passions12.35 Frisky Hot Früuleins1.05 Adult Feature1.20 FILM: I Want It All2.30-4.00amFILM: Women on Top                                                                                                                                                                                          | 12midnightThe Ten Minute Preview12.10am Viewers' Wives12.20 FILM:Deep Inside Tiffany Million1.00 Five Minute Freeview1.30 Adult Feature2.40 FILM: Dangerous Tides3.50-4.00am Paula King                                                                   |

|                         | Another London derby in the Premier League as Tottenham do battle with West Ham. Both teams are a few players short of the very top sides, but they have shown excellent form and also beaten the best - Manchester United lost at the Lane while Arsenal were beaten at Upton Park. David Ginola (pictured, left) provides the Spurs class, but this season the difference has been manager George Graham's organisation of the defence. For the Hammers, Trevor Sinclair (pictured, right) has finally lived up to expectations. |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | 10.00pm Freeview 10.05 FILM: The Experiment 12.00am Freeview 12.10am Adult Feature 12.20 Premier Strip 12.30 FILM: Going Nuts 1.45 Totty Try-Outs 2.00 FILM: Summer Sessions 3.15 Dark and Delicious 3.35-4.00am English Rose                                          | 12.00am The Ten Minute Preview 12.10am Adult Feature 12.20 Jane's World 12.45 FILM: Wet Nurses 1.00 The Five Minute Free View 1.05 FILM continues 2.00 Adult Feature 2.25 FILM: Jezebel 3.40-4.00am Cinema Sex                                |

FILM

Midnight in the Garden of Good and Evil
Sky Premier 10.00pm
Clint Eastwood directs this epic-length premiere of a true-life tale adapted from the John Berendt book. John Cusack plays a reporter caught up in the eccentricities of Southern society after a wealthy socialite, Kevin Spacey, murders his gay lover.

GENERAL

Lucy Sullivan is Getting Married
ITV2 9.30pm
Marian Keyes's best-selling novel adapted for the small screen. The everyday life and loves of Lucy (Sam Loggins) are revealed in this light-hearted drama also featuring ex-EastEnders Letitia Dean and Zoe Eeles as her flatmates. The series kicks off with a double bill tonight.

| LIVE THE VARSITY MATCH SKY SPORTS 2 2.00PMOK, so none of the home nations won the Rugby World Cup, but at least one of our teams will win the Varsity Match. Well, that's not quite true because both teams will be liberally sprinkled with southern hemisphere talent. Nevertheless, the traditional match between Oxford and Cambridge Universities will fill Twickenham with 70,000 spectators. It's the 118th meeting of the universities and has recently been a game worthy of the nation's attention. |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | PLAYBOY TV/ ADULT CHANNEL ADD-ON CHANNEL10.00pm Freeview 10.05 Passion Cove 10.45 Sex Guides 11.40 Sex Court 12midnight Freeview 12.10am Sunday Sport Stunners 12.25 Panties 1.00 FILM: Teledaddition 2.15 Biker Annie 2.40-4.00am FILM: Over the TopAdult Nightview is now available as a TV on-demand service between 10.00pm and 4.00am at £3.95.
